

The background of the central text area is a close-up photograph of molten aluminum being poured into a mold. The surface of the metal is highly textured and reflective, showing various shades of grey and white. A semi-transparent white rectangular box is overlaid on the image, containing the text. On the left side of this box, there is a large, stylized graphic element consisting of a dark blue curved shape and two red curved shapes, which is a larger version of the company logo.
